THE
NEW DOZEN
AT WESTMINSTER,
OR
Caleb's good Men and true.

A Trial was lately in Westminster-Hall,
Where Witnesses swear, and where Lawyers do bawl,
Where Right's often prov'd to be no Right at all,
Which no Nobody &c.

II.

There Caleb was call'd to be try'd by his Peers,
The Matter no more than his two Asses Ears,
But the Jury-Men cry'd, 'twas Jokes all and Jeers.

Which Nobody, &c.

III.

By his Peers he was try'd, according to Rules,
The One Half were Knaves, and the other Half Fools,
For the Work to be done were no fitter Tools.

Which Nobody, &c.

IV.

The Fact it was plain, and as plain was the Case
As the Nose in Will P---y's or Boling---ke's Face,
And all thought the Ruff would his Neck soon embrace.

Which Nobody, &c.

V.

But Caleb, th' Inventor of all Sorts of Evil,
Has father'd his Lies on the Alcaid of Seville,
And thereby out-done his Dadda the Devil.

Which Nobody, &c.

VI. So

VI.

So the Good Men and True could see Nothing in't;
 The Speech was no Words, and the Print was no Print,
 Besides they had touch'd what came out of the Mint.

Which Nobody, &c.

VII.

The Jury took Oaths they strict Justice would do,
 As some Folks take Oaths to be faithful and true,
 But the Less they believ'd as the Proof stronger grew.

Which Nobody, &c.

VIII.

So when they went out to consider the Thing,
 What'er we have sworn, Quo' they, we will bring
 A Verdict for Caleb, and not for the King.

Which Nobody, &c.

IX.

This Verdict was brought, and 'Squire D'Anvers set Free,
 His Head was thus kept out of the Pillory,
 But tho' he 'scap'd That, yet he mayn't 'scape the Tree.

Which Nobody, &c.

Li And

X.

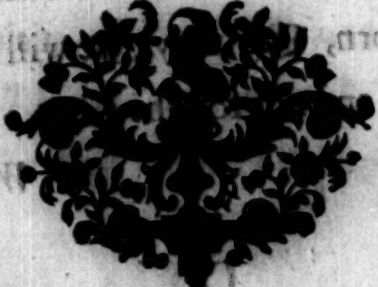

And if the Twelve Jury-Men chance to come there,
(As the Chance is not great) they'll surely declare
No Sin is like acting against What you swear.

Which Nobody, &c.

VII.

The Jury took Oaths they strict Justice would do,
As some Folks take Oaths to be just and true,
But the less they believ'd as the Troop stronger grew,
Which Nobody, &c.

VIII.

So when they went out to consider the Thing,
Whate'er we have sworn, we will bring
A Verdict for Cuck,  Which Nobody, &c.

This Verdict was brought, and Justice D. answers for Free,
His Head was thus kept out of the Pillory,
But tho' he leapt that, yet he mayn't scape the Tree,
Which Nobody, &c.

And
